“ ewell clemons was the man i best knew as pawpaw. he was the first person i ever wanted to be like. i cant remember ever seeing him do anything wrong. i loved to go anywhere with him when i was little. everyone knew him and respected him, he didnt talk too much but when he did there was always wisdom in his words. i wish i could have been around those last few years but bad choices took me away from my home. i hadnt seen him in seven years and ill never forget the joy i felt when he called me in december and told me, not asked,told me he wanted me to come home for christmas and that i could never do enough wrong to make him love me any less. then he passed away five days before christmas. i never got to see pawpaw. i miss him every day.
