“ Daddy,

It hasn't gotten any easier yet since you have been gone. I pray every night for God to bring me peace and some understanding of your situation and passing. There are so many questions that I wanted to ask you that I never got the chance to ask. I'm sorry that I was always busy trying to "grow up" instead of talking to you more. I always looked up to you but never showed it. I got that foolish pride trait from you I guess. I wish I understood you like the way you understood me. You always seemed to know the right thing to do and say at every moment to make everything better. No matter how old I get I will always need your help. Please watch over us down here while we look forward in seeing you again someday. Regretfully, I will end by saying something that I should have told you a lot more, I Love You.
